There has been a foolish fear of JAS. K. CARLIN executive leadership. If a party has any policy, the executive is naturally the chief interpreter. That's going some as the boys say, and yet not too far. The importance of the remark is in the impression it will make, for the boys should know how mean and depraved it is to rob a bird's nest, throw a club at a dog, or in any other way be cruel to our friends in the animal world. We are glad the governor came out. as strong as he did.
